FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

15-year Food Safety Expert, Eric Moore, Joins the Testo Solutions Team

WEST CHESTER, PA (September 12, 2017) – Public health advocate and food safety subject matter expert, Eric Moore, has joined the Testo Solutions USA, Inc. team as Director of Food Safety and Regulatory Compliance.

For the last 15 years, Eric has been a proactive leader in improving the food safety education, policies and procedures at multiple industry-leading food service and retail organizations, including Albertsons- Safeway, ARAMARK, and Compass Group. Over the span of his career, Moore has acquired various industry certifications and affiliations, has held his CP-FS credential since 2005 and has been an active attendee and committee participant of the Conference for Food Protection since 2012. Moore also holds a HACCP certification from the National Sanitation Foundation International, and has been a food safety subject matter expert for both the National Restaurant Association and Safemark-Prometric.

“Eric’s vast industry experience strengthens Testo’s role as a global thought leader for food safety and quality management,” says Bill Pezza, President of Testo North America. “He is able to bring substantial value to our customers by applying his extensive knowledge of critical food safety practices to meet their specific needs.”

Moore has worked with Testo since April and has attended several industry events including the International Association for Food Protection Conference and the National Restaurant Association Show Expo. Moore will be presenting at the Philadelphia Central Atlantic States Association of Food and Drug Officials on September 15th.
